

Biography:

Daniel Barringer is the Invasives Management Coordinator for the Media, Pennsylvania-based conservation organization Natural Lands. Mr. Barringer has 27 years' land management experience with Natural Lands, and currently manages the 621-acre Crow's Nest Preserve near Elverson, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Barringer entered the field of natural area management through the field of horticulture. He holds a B.A. in English from Haverford College, completed an internship at Morris Arboretum of the University of Pennsylvania, and continued his horticultural training at Longwood Gardens. Dan is a Master Urban Gardener, Certified Pesticide Applicator, and Firing Boss (FIRB) for Prescribed Fire.

Mr. Barringer gives lectures to garden clubs and environmental groups about the impact and management of invasive plants, and has been a speaker and moderator at the conferences of the Mid-Atlantic Invasive Plant Council. He also has spoken on the topics of prescribed grazing for habitat management and the use of a smartphone GPS to monitor conservation easements.